TATTLE TALE

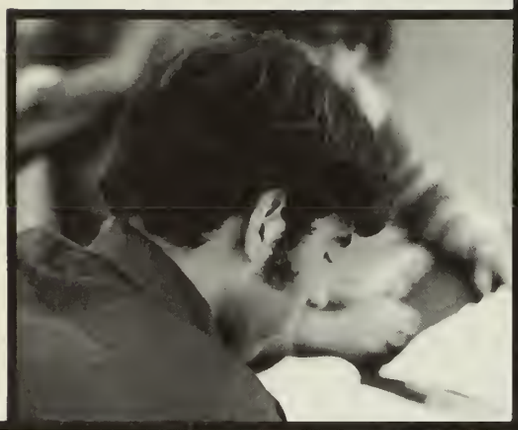
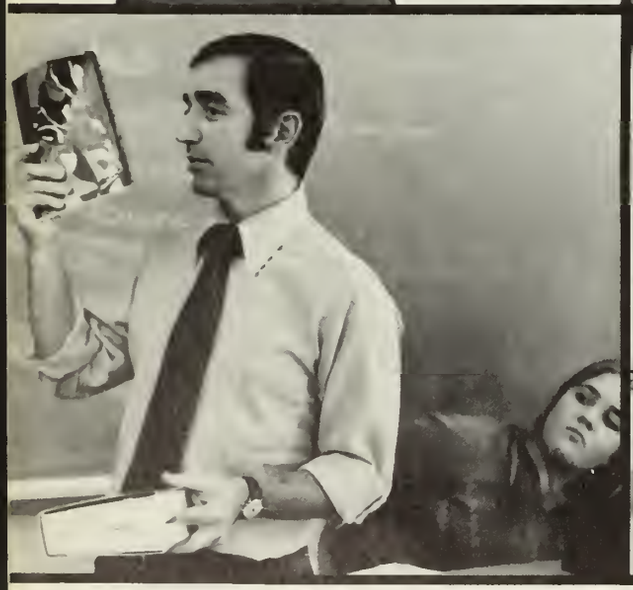
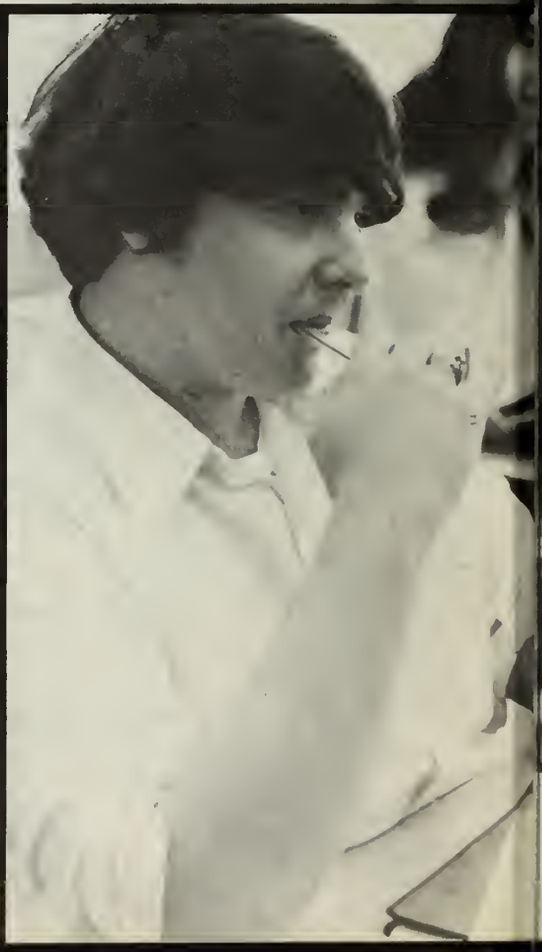
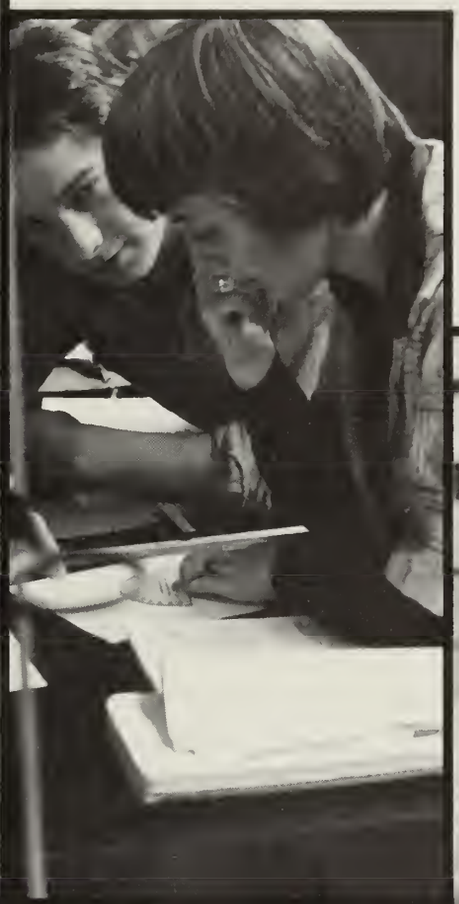
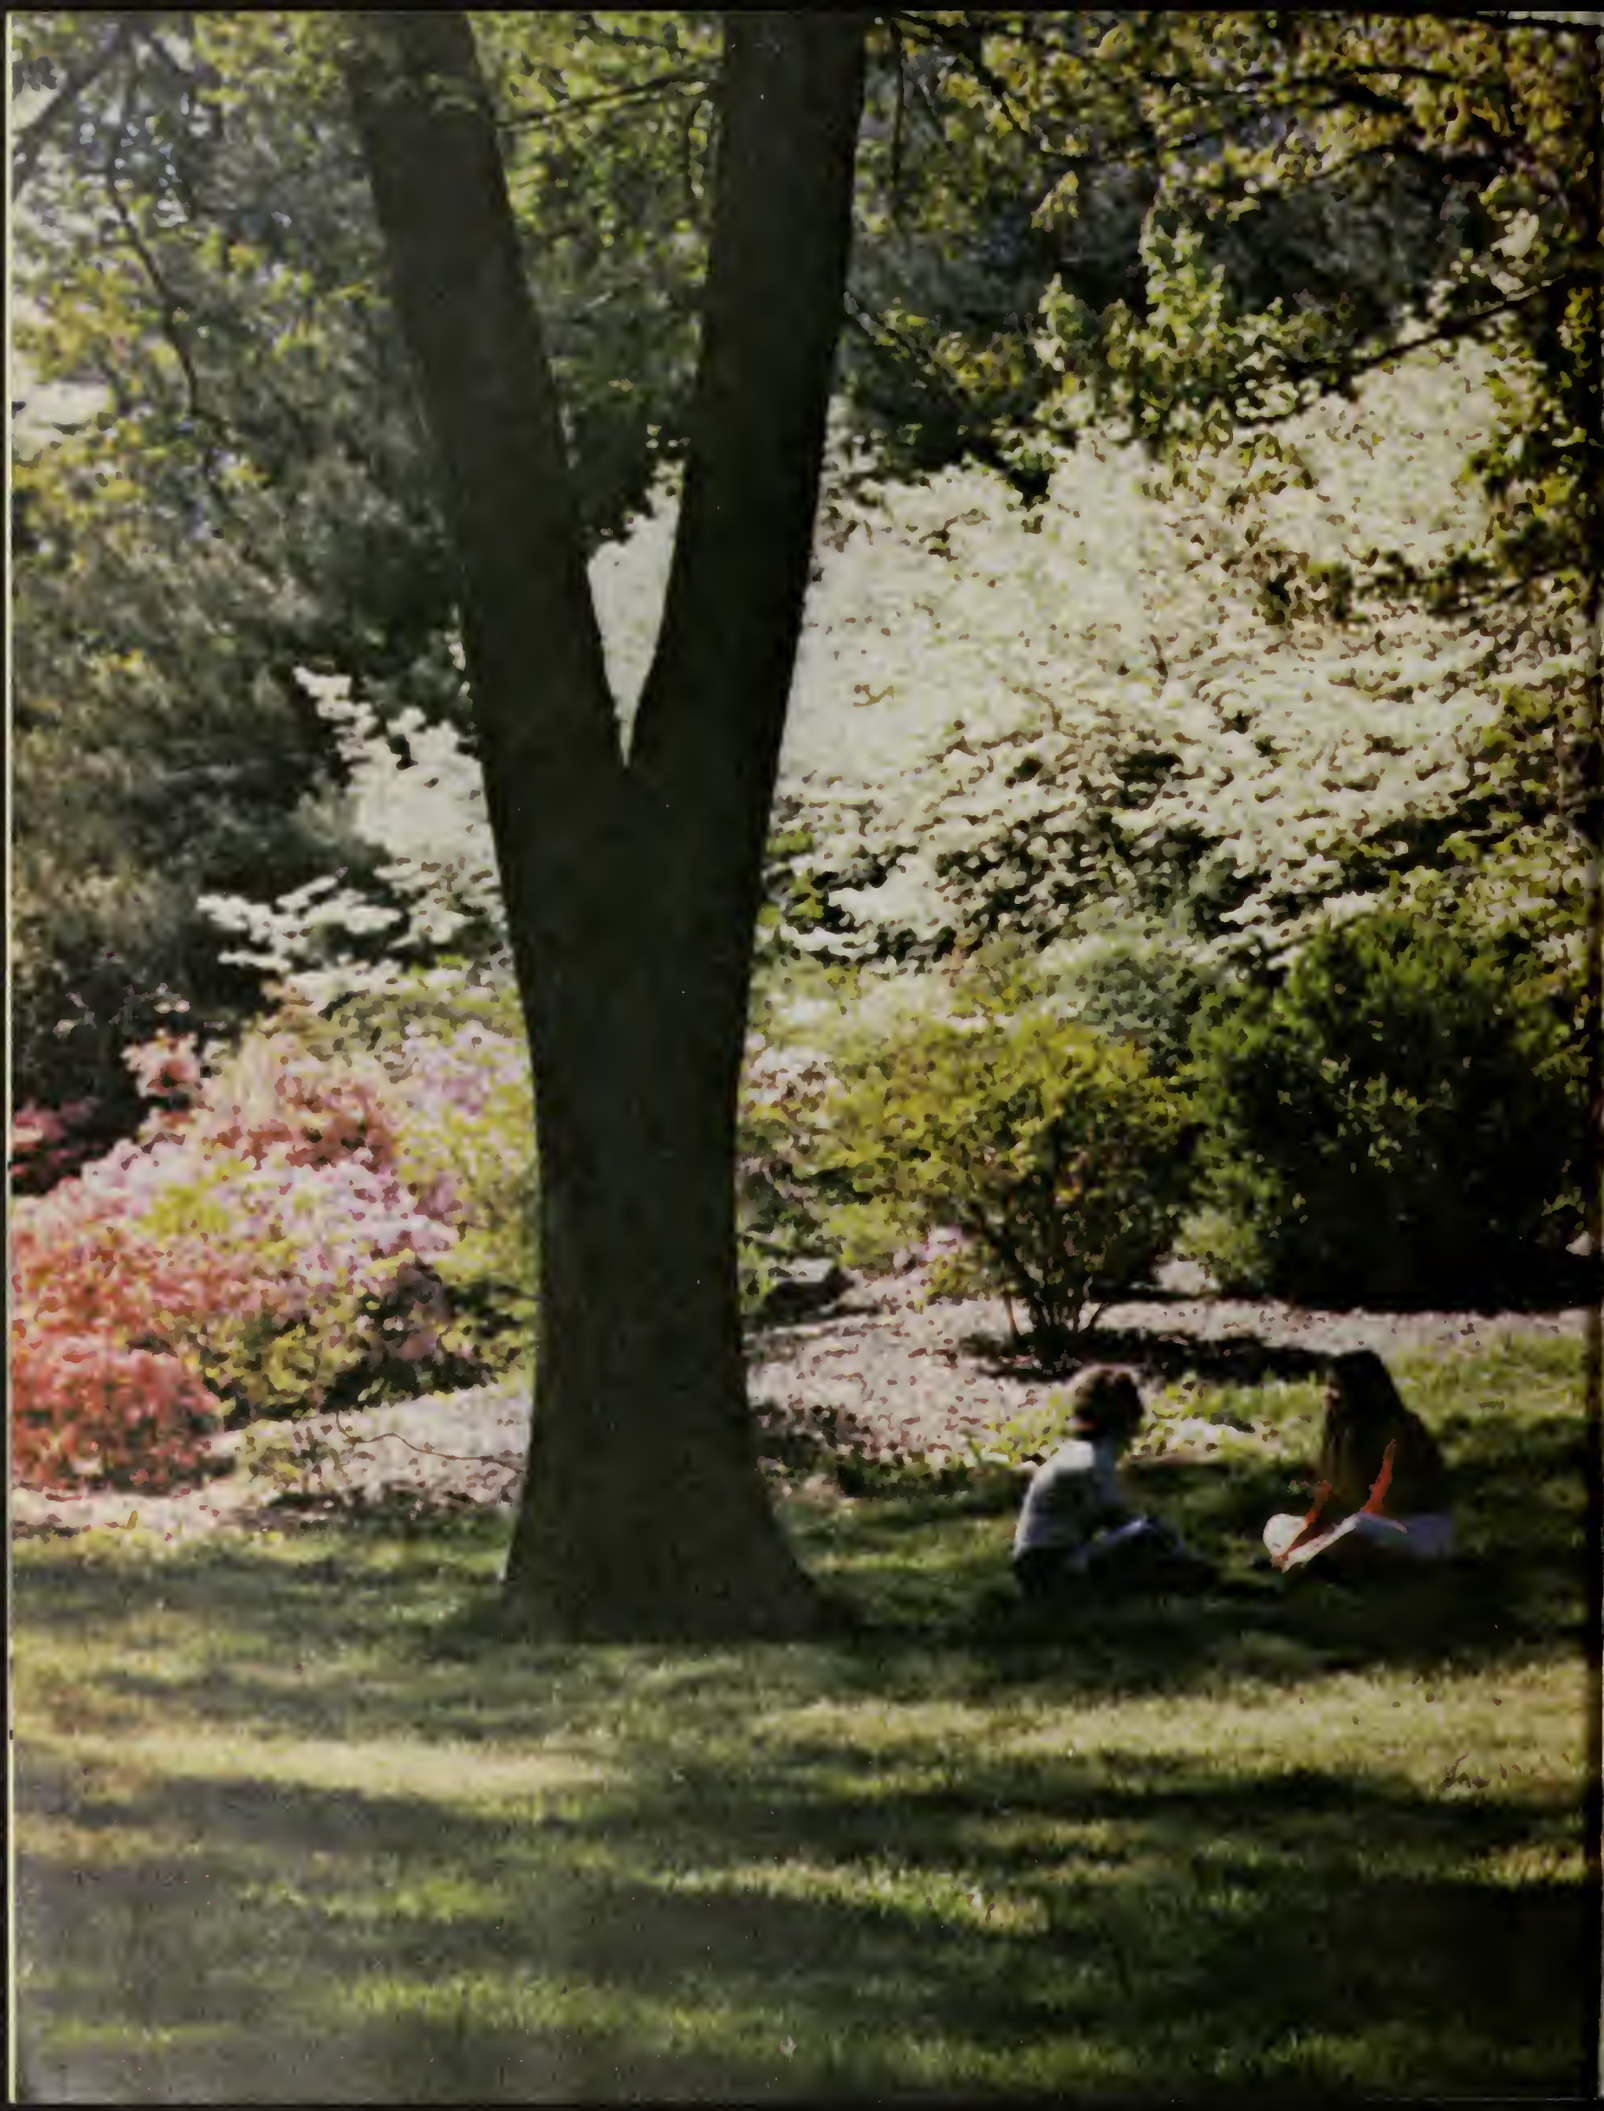
Attleboro High School
Attleboro, Massachusetts, 1975











"If a man does not keep pace with his companions perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music he hears, however measured or far away."

By Henry David Thoreau

Individuality is a challenge that we all encounter as life passes on, and the acceptance of it is not an easy task. The class of 1975 entered the Prep School as a large group of individuals given this challenge. The separate path each individual chooses to follow helps to form the unity of all. We are nearing the time when we all must step to the music we hear in our minds, and in our hearts. The reality of our dreams lies in the future of each persons's path. Long hours spent in class will become the experience of past learning. Hopefully, we will never reach all of our goals, for without dreams there is no individuality.

Dedication

. . . the fact that a teacher is chosen by a senior class as being one of the most appreciated people they have come to know during their high school years says a great deal about that teacher. Mr. Newman, you have been noted as being a person who cares a little more, listens a little bit longer, and never runs short of understanding. That little extra you have taken the time to give has not gone unnoticed.

Administration and Faculty . . .

. . . guiding lights giving us all
a foundation to build upon,
knowledge.

Dear Nicky,

We all miss you so much. It seems so different without you. I can still remember all the good times we had together. We all love you deeply. It seems so hard you're gone forever. Everytime I go to the cemetery I wish you knew I was there.

P.S. You will always be my Best Friend

Randy

Such sophisticated equipment is needed if vehicles are to be tested for pollution emissions and for maximum gas mileage as well as for safety.

Class History

The three years we have spent at Attleboro High School are quickly coming to an end. No group of people can spend that much time together without creating a little history of their own. It may not become one of the great contributions to the history of civilization, but it is a very important part of each of our lives. The world around us was making its own history, a history that will always be a part of us.

Sophomore Year

There we were, three very separate groups of people placed together in a new building and suddenly told, "Hey, you're the class of 1975." The old main lobby was simply called the main lobby and when you went to the office, there was only one place to go. We got off to a hopeful start with class advisors Miss Lajeunesse, Mr. Opiekun and Mr. Cignarella. We elected for class president Sue Schulze, for Vice President, Margaret McLaughlin, for Secretary, Michele Laferriere and Treasurer, Patti Maguire. We also elected eight student council representatives: John Casey, Mickey Hanewich, Emmet Kane, Mary Lee Kerrins, Kathy Lee, Carol Provost, Karen Roy and Patty Silvia.

We were now really getting actively involved in the school. One of our most successful fund raising events was our concert featuring Celebration. Maybe one of the not-so-pleasant memories was that of assigned study halls, unless you were lucky enough to escape to SST in Cafeteria B (for those of you who aren't too sure of the location of this once-existing eating place, it is now part of the Business rooms.

Around Thanksgiving we decided to make a gesture of equality by electing both a homecoming king and queen, Cindy Bosh and John Casey.

It seems that we had just finished going through elections when they came up again. We only made two changes in our class officers, new class president Kevin Sweeney and a new secretary, Julie Nelson. We also elected eight student council representatives: John Casey, Emmet Kane, Mary Lee Kerrins, Linda Lapierre, Kathy Lee, Karen Roy, Patty Silvia and Sue Wolstencroft. Sue Schulz was elected to be our student council vice-president.

We will always remember our great class meetings and being told by the administration what an impressive start we had made so far. They have probably long since given up those false hopes.

Junior Year

After one year of getting well-acquainted with our new surroundings, we arrived back in September 1973 to find we still had a challenge to face. The new addition was open and the high school was now four times its original size.

In one way the Defense Department, it seems, is just like the rest of us. It cannot live within its budget. It has requested an additional $474 million emergency increase in its military aid to South Vietnam, over and above the $1.6 billion unfortunately approved by Congress late last year.

Otherwise, says the Defense Department, the South Vietnamese will have to curtail sharply their military

The biggest thrill for the first half of the year was — can you believe it — class rings. These signed of our superiority to our underclassmen (soon to be discarded as relics) were flashed around the school for the proper amount of time before taking on the important task of binding the ties of true love.

Lots of people were passing one of the most important tests of their lives, their license. It was especially frustrating to get your license and not be able to go anywhere because of the gas shortage. People began to know what patience was after waiting an hour in line for gas.

In April of our junior year we held one of our most important social events, the Junior gathering. It was held at the Hearthstone restaurant.

The year wouldn't have been complete without another set of elections. The class faced a tough decision with only one candidate for president, John Casey. We elected Don Cui for Vice-President, Michele Laferriere for secretary and Kim Governo for treasurer. Sue Schulze was elected as student council President (or student government and services organizations President as the name now officially stands.) Emmet Kane was elected Vice-President and Betsy Bullock, Mickey Hanewch, Kathy Lee, Lisa Moore, Karen Roy and Patty Silvia were elected as senior class representatives. Greg Joyce, Joyce McKearney, Linda Powers and Sue Schwartz were elected to the Student Advisory Council.

The end of the year came quickly and most of us were faced with the shocking realization that we only had one more year left and a lot of important decisions.

Senior Year

September 1974 came and we finally entered the high school as seniors. We all became familiar faces in guidance as we searched for some direction for our futures. College applications, transcripts, recommendations, courses and credits all suddenly became very important.

On November 22nd, at the Venus deMilo, we held the most important social event of our high school years, the senior prom.

Christmas came and one of the nice memories was the gathering in the Resource Center to sing Christmas Carols on the day before Christmas Vacation.

One of the big events for the music department was held in January when school bands and orchestras came from all over the state for a weekend of music.

The year isn't over and maybe some of the best memories are yet to come. In the spring there will be trips to Europe, the senior play "The Matchmaker" and, of course, graduation for about 480 seniors. It always seemed like the end would never come, now we are facing it and looking hopefully toward the future.

7 O'Clock.
Get up . . . Hurry up you're going to be late . . . Everyone seems so anxious to get started . . . An empty school . . . Trudging through the snow . . . "Good Morning" — Sure, Hurry . . . Hurry . . .

8 O'Clock:
Did you do your English? No, I'll have to do it in French . . . Homeroom Should I go? What day is it? Oh no, I forgot something at home . . . Constant Motion . . . Do I have to get a pass? Oh, well, I haven't done anything wrong in a long time!

9 O'Clock:
Just think, only five more periods left! That kind of inspiration I don't need. Maybe we'll have a nice bomb scare, or blizzard, anything!!! Do you want to go to Tommy's for Coffee? I didn't have time for breakfast.

10 O'Clock:
Maybe some music will help . . . Does anyone have a quarter? Nothing better than watching the scene between classes . . . What do you mean this is a lab day???

11 O'Clock:
Only 30 minutes before lunch . . . My last chance is the nurse's office — Weren't you here yesterday with a fatal sore throat?? — NANCY AND SLUGGO, One of the more difficult books on the Senior reading list . . . I forgot my gym stuff again!

12 O'Clock:
The only thing I dare to buy is the milk!! What lunch do you have today?? Are you going to the Senior Lounge?? I'm not getting stuck clearing the table again . . . What time is it now?? You're Kidding!!!

1 O'Clock:
I've got to get out of here . . . If I finish it now I won't have to take home the book — Who are you kidding, you won't take the book home anyway . . . Do you have a game today? Dismiss the Girl's basketball team today at 1:30 . . . There's not enough time to start anything else — You said that first period.

2 O'Clock:
A rush for the door . . . What is the number on our bus? I can never remember it . . . I don't feel like going to practice today . . . Oh, I forgot I have to make up a Spanish test . . . Oh no the buses have already left . . . Don't give up Mr. Hall it's already Tuesday.

3 O'Clock:
And you thought things ended at 2 O'Clock — Practice — in every room. Who's screaming?? Is someone hurt?? Take it easy, that's only the Drama club! Were they out in the Main lobby too? No, that was the J.V. Cheerleaders — I can't stand waiting for the late bus . . . it's always late — and then it drops me off 2 miles away from my house.

4 O'Clock:
I might as well just stay here, I have to be back at 7 O'Clock for Student Council . . . Are you sure we have a ride?? Those darn gates; now I have to sleep here because I can't get out. And I didn't even get to go back to my locker — I'm so hungry, all I had to eat today was an apple and a ring ding from the Senior Lounge — I can't wait to get home — What a day!

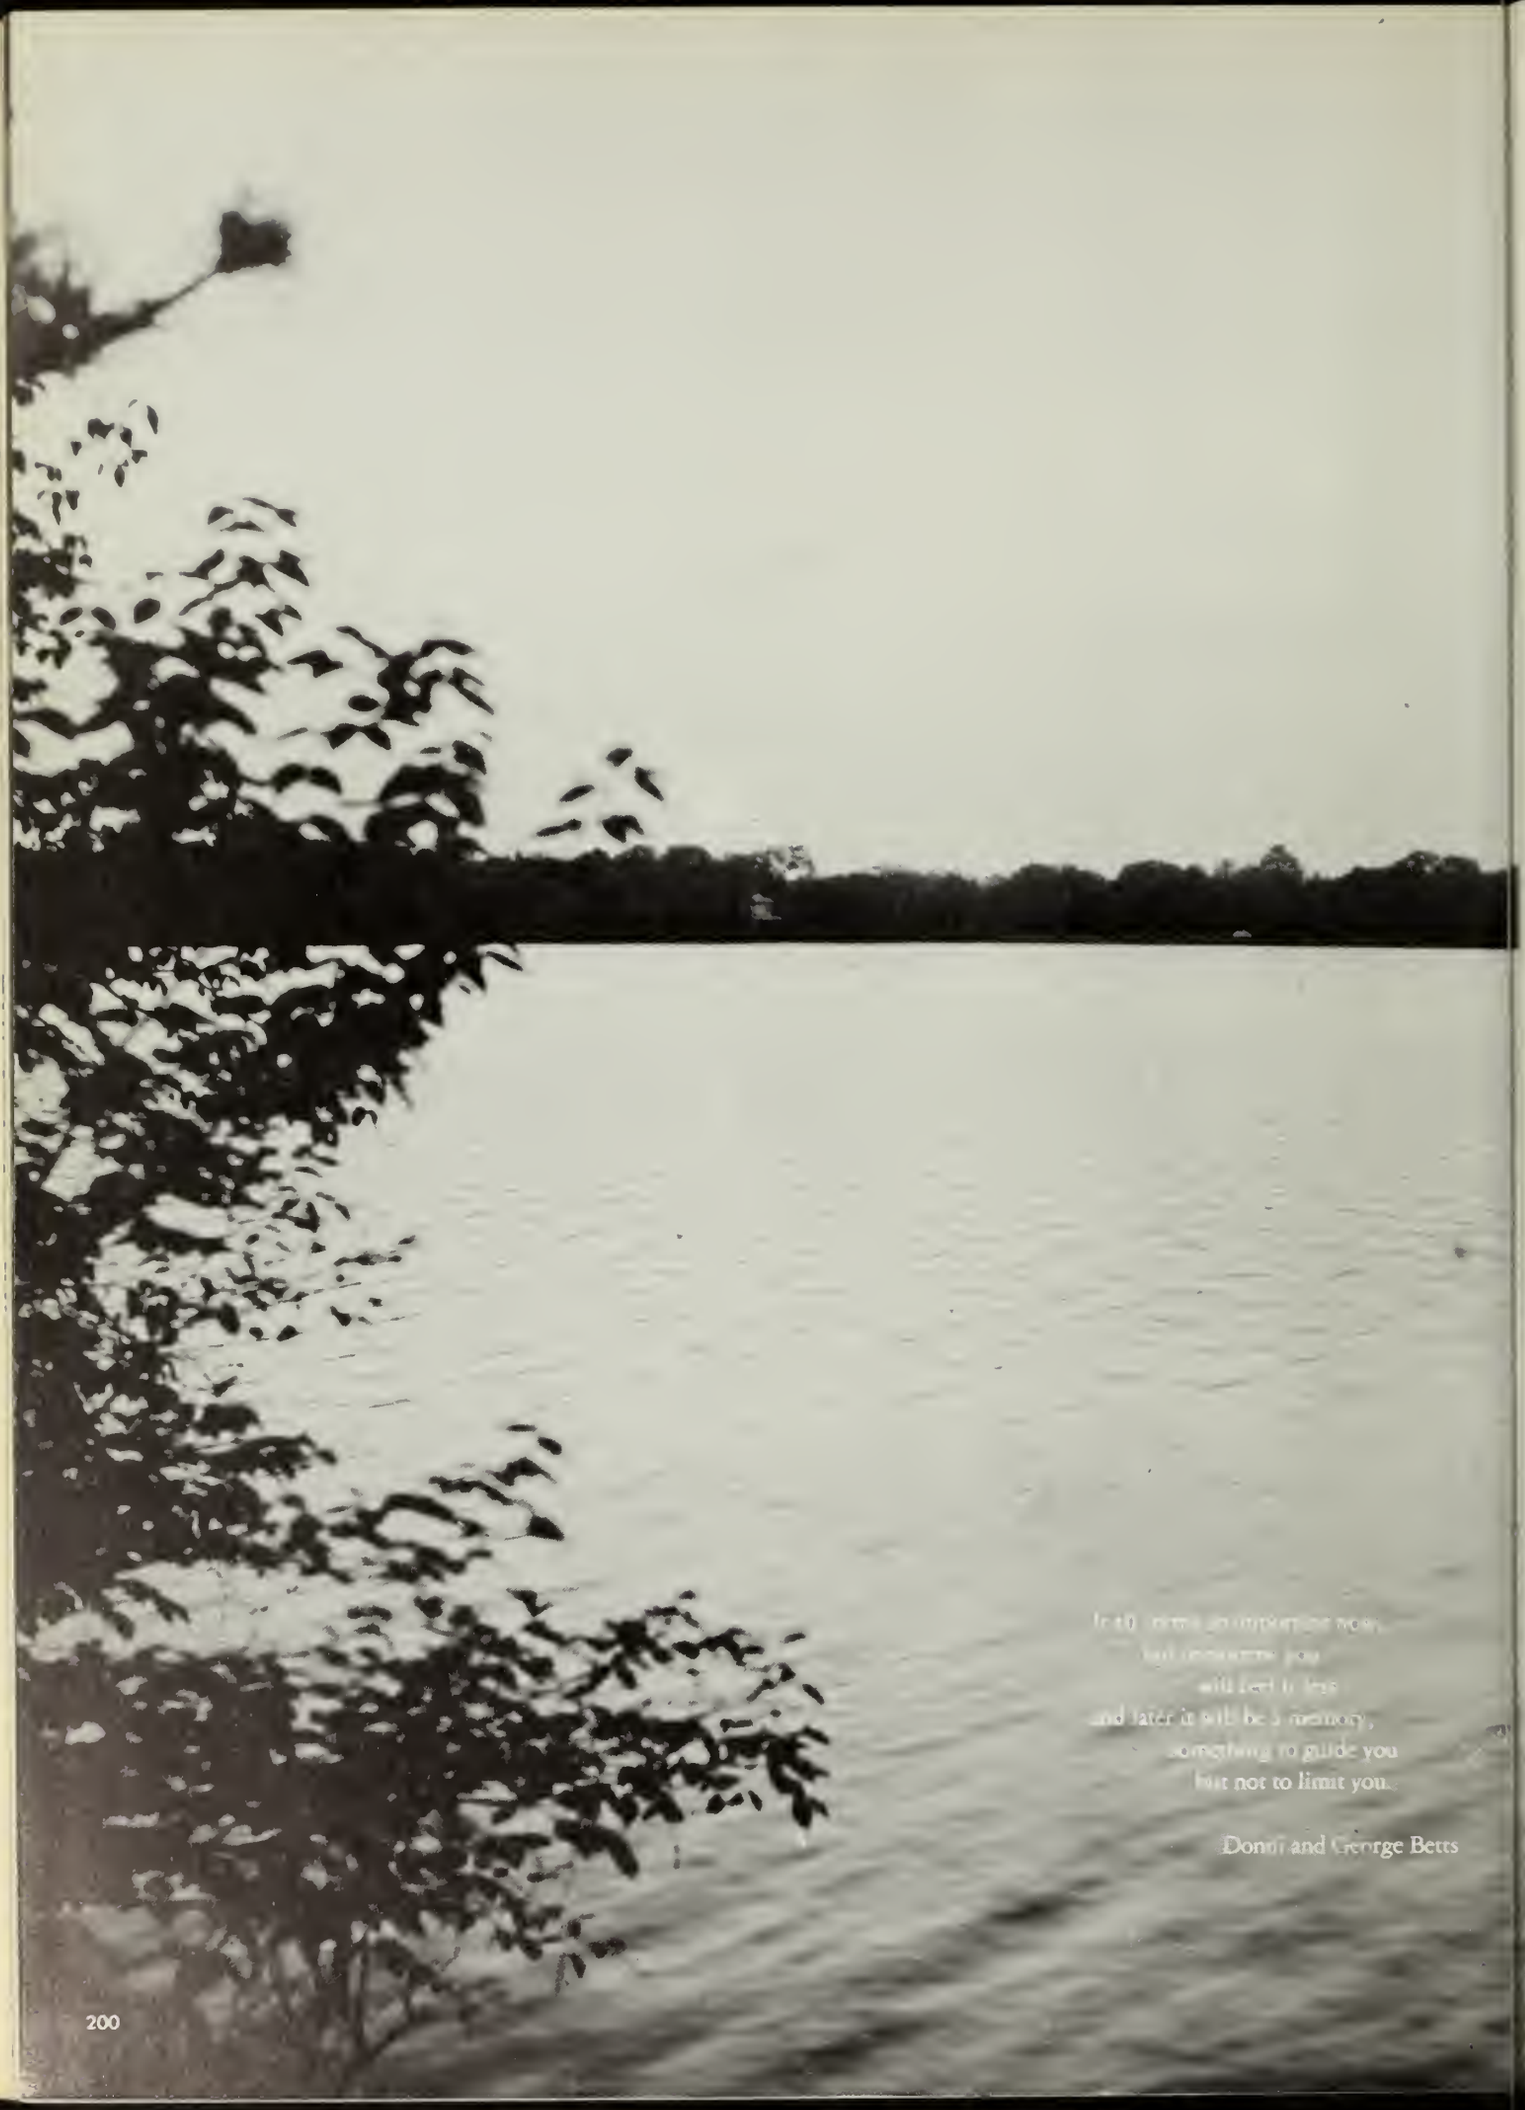
Winter's Sleep
Press the crystals of white rain,
Against transparent mirrors.
Reflect the moments of time,
A sweet merry fragrance.
Hypnotize senses with cold,
Frozen upon a numbed stoll.
The chill of winter has slathered.
The sleep of life is always.
J. Smith



It will seem unimportant now,
but moments you
will feel it less
and later it will be a memory,
something to guide you
but not to limit you.
